Arrest of Suspected Parties.

We have to chronicle this morning one of the most diabolical and terrible affairs that has ever been perpetrated in this community, even used as we are to trage dy in all its forms, rivaling in alrecity almost every exchange from our unhappy bleeding State, and showing in the mos vivid colors the horrors of the negro rule which is now rioting in a carnival of blood from one end of the State to the other. The circumstances which we glean from various sources are as follows: e About three o'dlock yesterday morning, Mr. T. A. Alexander, a peaceful, quiet gentleman, who lived on the Hernando road about three and a half miles from town, just this side of Cane Creek bridge, was aroused by hearing his name called by some one at the window of his bed om. He asked who was there and the answer was "some one who wished to see him on urgent business." Without suspecting any treachery he arese and atruck a light, and as soon as he did so two shots were fired at him by the party at the window. Mrs Alexander who was in the bed, sprung out terribly frightened, and rushing to the door, threw it open, and making her escape, ran toward the nouse of the nearest neighbor. As soon as the door was opened, another shot was fired at Mr. Alexander, this time, five buck-shots taking effect. He did not fall, howday—the sun shining brightly and a soft ever, and while trying to shut the door, four negroes armed to their teeth, sprang THE WEATHER was beautiful yesterinto the room and seized him. He struggled manfully with the miscreants, bu in vain. One of them placing a pistol against his breast attempted to fire it, but in the struggle the muzzle of the weapon was knocked up and the shot did not harm the intended victim. One of the printed, and contains a large amount of trutes struck him over the head with a reading matter suited for children. It is gun or club, and felled him to the floor, and then with sticks and a piece of stone beat him terribly about the head. He still struggled, however, and attempted out, struck him in the heart and brought Societies. There is a large number of British colonists in this city, who will be able to form a large society. CITY FINANCES

A Communication from Alderman Renner.

Mesers. Editors: The discussion in regard to the late issue of city bonds in the last meeting of the Board of Aldermen having led, unnecessarily, to the disa-greeable result of personal ill-feeling be-tween some of the Aldermen, and the probable resignation of one of the most efficient members of that Board, I feel induced, having taken an active part in that discussion, to state the motives which prompted me to support the reso-lution of the Aiderman from the Eighth Ward, Mr. Passmore, and if your space will allow it, I ask, respectfully, the use of your columns.

As I had been informed that the million dollars of bonds allowed by the voters of the city, last spring, were well-nigh absorbed, I had, on last Tuesday's meeting, a resolution passed requesting the Chairman of the Finance Committee report: 1st, the uses to which at which they had been negotiated. 3d, the effect this operation had had upon the financial condition of the city; and 4th, whether it was desirable to have more bonds issued. On Wednesday morning It was freely talked about among official circles, that only 150 bonds were left in the hands of the Mayor—and that these were retained for certain purposes, and that some 150 bonds more could profitably be employed the same way-but that no cash was as yet flowing into the City Treasury and was not likely to do so for some time to come; and hence there would be no money to defray the current expenses of the city, nor any means to raise funds for that purpose. On coming to the Exchange Hall I saw the resolution of the Aiderman of the Eighth Ward, calling for the inhibition of the forther issuance of bonds, with a preamble averring that a portion of the bonds had been diverted into channels contrary to the ordinance which provided for their use. Though the preamble seemed to me at the time a little too severe in its wording yet, on reflection, I could not say that its statements were entirely unfounded, as the ordinance provided that the bonds enould be used to fund the debt of the ity, whilst I was aware that some of the unds had been used to take up former onds and thus renew the debt that was already funded, others to raise money to pay the July Interest, instead of funding them, others to raise money for the current expulses of the city government. All objects, which though either desirable pessary, were not contemplated by the letter of the ordinance, as I under-stand it; and therefore if the mover of that resolution insisted on the preamble, the only thing that might be easid against it was, that by implication, and by implication alone, it was reflecting either on the character or the policy the Chairman of the Finance Committee, This implication as to character never entered my mind, nordid I think it could possibly enter the minds of the other Aldermen. The policy of the Financial Committed before, and as is publicly known, the bonds were issued to take up the floating debt, consisting of scrip, ledger baiances, past due coupons—in sbort all such certificates of indebtedness which we were obliged to receive in the coupons of the state we were obliged to receive in payment of texes, in order that we might, as speedily as possible, resume a cash basis for the financial operations of the city, and have funds for the city expenses.

At the time of the passing of the Ordinance, that kind of indebtedness amount-ed to nearly one and a half millions of dollars. As often spaken about among the Aldermen, we thought it would take some considerable time before a million bonds would be absorbed, and the taxes has not been obtained-eash is not coming in yet, and a large amount of paper been consistently used for one purpose alone, that is to remove the floating debt. To fund the debt, and at the same time to furnish collaterals for nearly $75,000 of city notes, at the rate of forty and fifty cents on the dollar, the amount of one million was certainly too small, and it might have been known beforehand. So far, I take the liberty to criti-dise the policy of the Finance Commit-tee, and no tarther; and, if that Com-mittee should say: "Well, yeu can tak very wisely, now that the soup is split,"

Labell and argin, you might have known. reach. Finding ourselves in this situation, and speing no other way to keep up the expenditures of the city, I thought it was wise to hold on to the balance of the conds for collaterals to raise the money wherewith to pay the employes of the city, as well as other expenses, through the coming winter, until the taxes have entirely reduced the paper against us, which has been lessened by $400,000 by the bouds. This, Mr. Elitor, whether right r wrong, I think I had a right to advocate. My soul thought of no in-crimination. I may differ with these gentlemen of the Board, as far as the policy of our finances is concerned; with regard to the confidence which ought to be placed in the Finance Com- 323 boxes. mittee, there can be no possible differ-

We publish this morning the advertisement of the medical department of this time-honored and excellent lustitution, which commences its sixty-first annual session, on the nineteenth day of October. This University is one of the best in our country, and possesses a com-bination of advantages that few others can boast of. Baltimore, where it is situated, is a large city, numbering over three hundred thousand inhabitants, furnishing all the material necessary for a medical school. The clinical department is an infirmary attached to the buildings, where there are always a great variety of forms and of diseases always under ond to none in the United States. In point of age the college ranks therd in our county. In addition to what we have said as to the merits of the school we will add that the tone and sentiment of the Institution is strongly Southern. The professors are all intensely Southern, and for this reason were distranchised uring the war. Professors Aiken, Mc Sherry and Smith, all sent sons into th Confederate army at the breaking out of the war, and both Smith and John shell while dressing the wound of a soldier on the battle-field. We cordially recommend this Institu tion to our young friends who propose studying medicine. There is no reason why Southern youths should continue to go North to study medicine or surgery when we have in the South such colleges as the Maryland University. Professor Miltenberger, the Dean, at Baltimore, will furnish any further information which may be required.
